

Notes from Lianne to Me:

- Easier to read body typeface (possibly taller or thicker)
- Adding a link to the album (like spotify or apple music) like a hover option over the album covers
- Images next to the text without it wrapping in the life/death section
- "Mac Miller" at the top (appearing on every page)
- Logo/portrait at the top (possibly instead of name)
- Images all along the life/death page
- Possible separate page for discography/live performances
- Footer with sources (pink with blue type)
- think about navigation for mobile

Notes from Me to Amanda:

- Make the background gradient a bit more defined (possibly with different shades of blue or purple, or different values)
- On mobile, possibly having things that are in three columns become one column
- Possibly getting rid of the lines connecting the text to the images (I like the way they look but it might be hard to make sure they align at all sizes/orientations)
- Possible addition of movement/gifs, such as something that changes colors when you scroll over it or a gif of the moon rotating
- Consistent alignment of titles, or just making sure that the alignment has a purpose for being the way that it is
